NEW CAMPANILE REPLICA OF FORM

Wonders Are Done in Putting the Fragments of the Old Campanile—Perfect Reproduction—Shattered Columns and Statues Replaced or Copied With Immaculate Labor.

Venice, May 12.—The Campanile stands today, ten years after its collapse, an exact replica to all external appearances of its former self, but within there is a strange mingling of the old and the new. Right through the center of the mighty shaft they came today a well appointed passenger elevator.

The cost of reconstructing the Campanile has been $440,000. In the building of the brick shell 1,285,000 bricks were used. In addition to these, 2,519 meters of new and 25 of old brick were used. The total weight of the structure is 12,570,000 kilograms.

These figures convey little idea of the enormous labor, the industrial artistic skill and mechanical dexterity devoted to the work. The old Campanile was built in part of the finest material. The superstructure was far too heavy for the foundation and the masonry. The vibration of the five national home bells was a constant danger to the stability of the building.

The difficulty then that faced Giuseppe Mazzanti, the architect of the new Campanile, was to insure against any possibility of a repetition of the disaster and yet retain an exact semblance to the original structure. This, with much ingenuity, has been accomplished, but what is of greater immediate interest to those who knew the original Campanile is the exactness of its reproduction and the wonderful work that has been done in the way of using and restoring the original material and works of art.

When the huge lower collapsed in 1902, it buried in its debris the shattered fragments of Sanovino's wonderful Loggia with all its sculptured details in marble and bronze. Today statues and reliefs, multi-colored marbles, and carved capital stand as they did. An architectural gem has been raised from a chaotic mass of ruins.

The marvelous bronze gates of Antonio Gatti, a triumph of 19th century Italian craftsmanship, bent, twisted and battered by the collapse, now show clearly a trace of the damage.

The equally injured bronze statues of Apollo, Mercury, Minerva and Poseidon in the niches between the pillars have been perfectly restored. But nothing perhaps is so wonderful as the restoration of the famous masterpiece of Sanovino, the terra cotta group of the Madonna with the infant Jesus and St. John. This was shattered into 1,500 fragments, which had to be pieced out of the heap of dust and broken stone and brick and the pieces have been miraculously placed together again, all but the irretrievably lost head of the Virgin.

There were, of course, innumerable photographic plates taken of the ruins, but the artist in the work of reconstruction, but their achievement is minor, the less important whether in the patching of missing fragments or in replacing those irretrievably lost.

In the purely architectural features, such as the columns and pilasters, the material rescued from the ruins has been skillfully added with as little waste as possible. In several cases one column has been made up from the fragments of a pair, its companion being replaced by a new, carefully matched material. Thus the remains of three of the original Campanile statues of the reconstruction of two, one being made of thirteen fragments and the other of thirty-five. Some remaining pieces were used for making a new column for the niche of the Madonna.

Nothing is so fascinating as the putting of the new Campanile on an exact replica, with its prime heavy unimpaired, of the famous old edifice.

TO PROTECT OLD MONUMENTS.

Bill Placing House of Lords to Prevent American Depravations.

London, May 12.—The House of Lords has taken effective measures to prevent the removal of further historical monuments to America. Avoiced by the mass recent purchases by Americans of interior decorations of old castles and houses, the government, through Earl Beauchamp, first commissioner of works, has introduced and passed a second reading a bill entitled "Ancient Monuments Protection Bill." The bill gives the government the right of pre-emption of purchases of monuments of interest which otherwise might be sold and sent out of the country. The bill was supported by Lord Curzon and other opposition peers and will have a smooth passage through both houses.

Toronto Official Resigning.

Toronto, May 12.—Kenneth J. Allen, managing director of the hydro-electric department, has been granted a six month's leave of absence. It is rumored that he is severing his connection with the department and will not return to the city service. The work of installing the system has been more costly than anticipated and the recent discovery of thefts of material of the department has added to the dissatisfaction.

Nesbitt Will Get Bail.

P. has subscribed $2,000 for the chair.

TWO WIRELESS MEN.

Canadian Northern Improving Wireless System on Two Atlantic Boats.

The Canadian Northern railway has decided to maintain a second wireless operator on the steamer Royal Edward and Royal George, thus obtaining the 24 hour service which has been shown so essential by the Titanic disaster. These will be operators, and the innovation will probably be put in effect within a few weeks. The company is also arranging to have a searchlight fitted on the Royal Edward for the purpose of making a thorough use of the ability. Some years ago the Captain of the Canadian steamer was provided with a searchlight, but for some reason this was very quickly abandoned, and since then no further experiments have been made in this direction. Practically the only ocean-going vessels which carry searchlights today are those in the Anglo-Australian service, which are compelled to have them for use in passing through the Red Sea.

It is with some pride that the Royal Line officials point out the fact that their steamers have always been equipped with lifeboat and raft accommodations in excess of the British board of trade requirements. In addition to the sixteen standard lifeboats demanded by law, they have a number of extra, arranged in a double row of four collapsible boats and several rafts. Thus the Royal Edward and George, which are rated at 12,600 tons, and never carry more than 1,000 passengers, have a lifeboat room for more in their boats than had the Titanic, rated at 45,000 tons, and intended to carry over 2,000 people. The C. N. R. has now ordered additional lifeboats, which will increase their saving capacity up to the full complement of passengers and crew.

Prof. H. T. Barnes, of McGill, who has invented a device called the piezo-thermometer, called by the Royal George for the purpose of testing the ship's hull after the fashion of the patent ice, and is expected to report the progress and location of ice within a radius of two miles by means of a temperature dial in the chart room.

FOUR MORE BODIES RECOVERED FROM WRECK

Steamer Montserrat Picks Up Survivors of Titanic Victims—Stranger Passenger from Toronto Among the Numbers—Dense Fog Prevails.

Dulifax, May 12.—The Canadian Government steamer Montserrat picked up four more bodies from the Titanic in the three days on the ocean. The passengers from the ship all died near the date of May 11th, but they are believed to have been sent during the past three days subject to death in relation. The message is given below in what is believed to have been their chronological order of recovery. The first body was found by P. V. P. Mitchell, of Montreal, who had been here since the disaster broke out after the sinking of the White Star Line.

It will be observed that in the pocket of the clothing on one of the bodies the name and address of a Toronto resident were found. The body was found last Thursday afternoon, states that the Montserrat arrived in the vicinity of the wreckage in a dense fog and that there was very little light of finding many bodies under the present conditions.

The second message, probably an address, was found on the body of a young man, Toronto.

The third body was found on the body of a young man, Toronto. The fourth body was found on the body of a young man, Toronto.

The fifth body was found on the body of a young man, Toronto. The sixth body was found on the body of a young man, Toronto.

TWO LONDON PAPERS HAVE AMALGAMATED

Daily News and Morning Leader Agree under the Title—London Newspapers Becoming Fewer—Four Existing Publications Are Now in the Market, Others Are Struggling to the End.

London, May 12.—The Daily News and the Morning Leader make their first appearance today as one paper under the title of the Daily News and Leader. In the leading article, explaining the events leading to the union, the editor admits that the two papers, which have hitherto existed as rivals, have been forced to unite.

The union is described as a "practical compromise" which has been maintained at the same time, and the two papers, which have hitherto existed as rivals, have been forced to unite.
